PUBLIC ART COMES ALIVE IN WESTLAKE WESTLAKE EMBARKS ON UNPRECEDENTED PUBLIC ART PLAN

The Town of Westlake is on the brink of becoming a major player in the world of art with the exciting announcement of a brand new public art advisory committee that will position the town as the gold standard for cities around the world. The committee will help guide the Town of Westlake in its search for an innovative approach to creating art that will do much more than filling an open space, but instead energize the landscape by combining environment, land and architecture to uplift our community. The committee and the town will work together to create art competitions that will garner the attention of artists from around the world to be a part of this opportunity. The committee won't be searching for existing work that can be bought, instead they will bring artists to Westlake to create their original work. The nine-member committee who will be forming the competitions can be best described as a "Dream Team" in the art community. Rebecca Lawton (Former Head Curator of the Amon Carter Museum in Fort Worth), Judy Deaton (Head Curator of the Grace Museum in Abilene), Sue Canterbury (Associate Curator of American Art at the Dallas Museum of Art), Terry Oldham (Former Director of the Albrecht-Kemper Museum in Kansas City), Barry Whistler (Owner of Barry Whistler Gallery in Dallas), Cheryl Vogel (Owner of Valley House Gallery in Dallas), Paloma Anoveros (Curator for The Charles Schwab Company and former Curator San Francisco Museum of Art), Katie Blair (Senior Design Manager for The Charles Schwab Corporation) and Chris Worley (Owner of Chris Worley Fine Art in Dallas). The committee will work hand and hand with design professionals, curators, art institutions and sponsors to create competitions that may attract artists from around the world. "From my perspective, as a resident and Mayor of the Town of Westlake, I am humbled by the gifts of time and talent that the members of the arts committee are making on our behalf. These are all individuals who are incredibly well-respected in their field who will be working, pro bono, to make public art come alive in Westlake. It is a tremendously exciting time," says Mayor Laura Wheat. Westlake will play a pivotal role in advancing art through a time of rapid growth and focus the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity presented by such growth to produce a legacy that future generations will greatly appreciate.
