GRAYSON COUNTY, Texas -- The first report cards for Grayson County students are still weeks away with classes just getting underway.

But the grades came in today for their school districts, and they run the gamut from "A" to "F."

The 13 Grayson County districts were evaluated by the Texas Education Association. Bells and Van Alstyne topped the list with "A" grades.

Denison, Whitewright and Whitesboro ISDs all received a "B."

Sherman finished the year with a "C."

District Name	Overall Rating	Overall Grade
Bells ISD	A	92
Collinsville ISD	C	74
Denison ISD	B	82
Gunter ISD	B	86
Howe ISD	B	87
Pottsboro ISD	B	84
S&S CISD	B	82
Sherman ISD	C	79
Tioga ISD	met standard	87
Tom Bean ISD	F	59
Van Alstyne ISD	A	93
Whitesboro ISD	B	85
Whitewright ISD	B	87

Sherman ISD Superintendent Dr. David Hicks said the grade for his district is not an accurate representation of the work they do.

"Our teachers that come early and stay late and tutor our kids? That's not measured in a test score. How the teachers care about the personal needs of our children? That's not measured in a test score," he said. "I want our parents to know that we've got great things going on, and none of that is in our accountability system."

The grades for each district are based on three main categories: student achievement, school progress, and a section called "closing the gap."

In Cooke County, Lindsay and Muenster ISDs topped the list with "A" grades. No Fannin or Lamar County school districts fared better than a "B" grade, according to the TEA.

The top overall grade in the State of Texas went to the Westlake Academy charter school in Tarrant County.
