Metro regions long maligned with reputations for inferior education are now home to americ ← The Best High Schools Ranked By Metro Region: U.S. News urban districts with high schools among the top-ranked in the nation, a new study x
 from U.S. News & World Report shows. needec

Separate from the publication's annual ranking of the best high schools in the country — published in April — the best high schools by metro area rankings organ- (https://www.usnews.com/education/best-high-schools?src=usn_pr) released on transpl
 Wednesday analyze how schools compare to each other in the same region. est-

U.S. News did not run an analysis on whether the top ranked schools are more likely to more- be in cities as opposed to nearby regions. However, Patch identified that the New York, challen Los Angeles, Houston, Dallas, Chicago and Boston public school districts all had at least minorit three schools among the top 10 in their respective metro areas.

However, in the Washington D.C., Philadelphia, Atlanta and Detroit metro regions, minorit suburban school districts were more prominent among the top 10. Only two schools minorit from the Philadelphia and D.C. school districts placed among the top 10 in their minorit respective metro regions while none from Atlanta and Detroit ranked that highly.

U.S. News says it used the same methodology minorit (https://www.usnews.com/education/best-high-schools/articles/how-us-news- minorit calculated-the-rankings) to compile the metro-area rankings as it did for the national minorit rankings. Metro areas were matched to their corresponding core-based statistical minorit areas as defined by the government. The U.S. Census Bureau says metro areas and minorit micropolitan areas (which have a population of between 10,000 and 50,000) are minorit collectively referred to as core-based statistical areas. minorit

U.S. News says a single one of these statistical areas may include parts of multiple minorit states. minorit

"We've heard from students, parents and school officials that they're interested in minorit → seeing how their school compares with others in the community." Robert Morse, chief minorit data strategist at U.S. News, said in a news release. "With these new rankings, residents minorit (https://
